Arafat's Health Worsens

Palestinian leader collapses, remains in 'serious situation'

RAMALLAH, WEST BANK | Yasser Arafat collapsed Wednesday evening, was unconscious for about 10 minutes and remained in a "very difficult situation," Palestinian officials said. A team of Jordanian doctors was urgently summoned to treat the ailing Palestinian leader.

A Palestinian official in Arafat's office said the Palestinian leader had created a committee of three senior officials, including Prime Minister Ahmed Qureia, to run Palestinian affairs until he recovers. However, other Palestinian officials, including his spokesman Nabil Abu Rdeneh, denied that.

Israeli security officials said Arafat's wife, Suha, who lives in France, was expected to arrive Thursday.

Arafat

Arafat had been ill over the past two weeks, suffering from what Palestinian officials said was a lengthy bout of the flu. Israeli officials speculated he might have stomach cancer, but doctors said Wednesday that a blood test, combined with a biopsy, showed he does not have cancer of the digestive tract.

Arafat has not left his compound since 2002 for fear of being snatched by Israeli troops. Israel, which accuses Arafat of stoking violent attacks against it, had previously said Arafat was free to leave the compound and even to travel abroad, but it would not guarantee he would be allowed to return.

The 75-year-old Arafat has refused to groom a successor, for fear of nurturing a rival who could threaten his rule, and no clear challenger has emerged. MOHAMMED DARAGHMEH (AP)

Ancient Dwarf Species Found

In an astonishing discovery that could rewrite the history of human evolution, scientists say they have found the skeleton of a new human species, a dwarf, marooned for eons in a tropical Lost World while modern man rapidly colonized the rest of the planet.

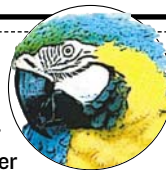

The finding on a remote Indonesian island has stunned anthropologists like no other in recent memory. It is a fundamentally new creature that bears more of a resemblance to fictional hobbits than to modern humans.

Yet biologically speaking, it may have been closely related to us and perhaps even shared its caves with our ancestors.

The 3-foot-tall adult female skeleton found in a cave is believed to be 18,000 years old. It smashes the long-cherished scientific belief that our species, Homo sapiens, systematically crowded out other upright-walking human cousins beginning 160,000 years ago and that we've had Earth to ourselves for tens of thousands of years.

Scientists called the dwarf skeleton "the most extreme" figure to be included in the extended human family. The extinct species has been named Homo floresiensis, or Flores Man, and details appear in Thursday's issue of the journal Nature. JOSEPH B. VERRENGIA (AP) electronic gear, one of the burglars realized a parrot in the home had heard him say his accomplice's name and was repeating it. They went back for the bird and were loading it into the car when police arrived, authorities said. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

A Dealer's Fix

An Australian court ruled Wednesday that a convicted heroin dealer can claim a $165,000 tax deduction for money stolen during a drug deal. Francesco Dominico La Rosa of Perth, Australia, can write off the money as lost income. The Australian Taxation Office tried to make La Rosa, who served a 12-year prison term for dealing heroin and amphetamines, pay tax on his 1994-95 income, which it estimated at $337,000. La Rosa insisted his taxable income should be reduced because half that sum had been stolen after being buried in his backyard. (AP)

To Catch a Thief, Give Him a Call

Police said they had substantial clues in two theft cases — a suspect's name and telephone number. Bradley J. Hightower, 23, of Latrobe, Pa., gave his name and number when he applied for a job Oct. 12 at Rolling Hills Industry, Latrobe police said. While finishing the application, Hightower took a cash box, police said. "We called him the same day, [with] the phone number he'd written on his job application. He confessed," said officer John Sleasman.

A week later, Hightower left his name and number at Latrobe Area Hospital when applying to volunteer, police said. Employees later found their wallets were missing, police said. Again, police called Hightower, who confessed to taking the wallets, Sleasman said. (AP)

According to the form signed by Harmon, Flores was charged with having no driver's license, violation of the seatbelt law, a registration violation, no proof of insurance and failure to yield. A few weeks later, Parsley filed more citations against Flores in connection with an incident on Oct. 27. That's 10 days after Flores died. (EXPRESS)

Campaign Battle Rolls On

Bush makes appeal to Democrats as Kerry keeps focus on Iraq

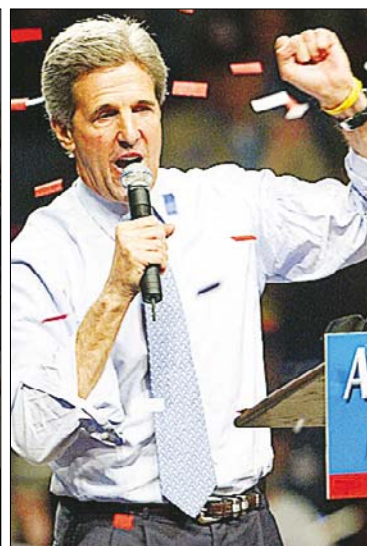

LITITZ, PA. | President Bush summoned support from Democrats whose "dreams and goals are not found in the far left wing" of their own party on Wednesday in a late-campaign appeal for crossover votes. Democratic Sen. John Kerry said that when it comes to Iraq, the man in the White House "doesn't get it, and he can't fix it."

Six days before the election, the president and his Democratic challenger appeared before large crowds in battleground states as their aides made strategic adjustments for the campaign's endgame.

Bush's camp put extra money into television ads in Portland, Maine — a bid to claim victory in next-door New Hampshire, where recent polls show Kerry the narrow leader. Kerry meanwhile, stepped up efforts in Hawaii, customarily a safe Democratic state.

PRESSING THE ISSUE: President Bush, in Lititz, Pa., and John Kerry, in Rochester, Minn., continued a vigorous trek through battleground states on Wednesday.

The president's first stop of the day was in Lititz, Pa. In his speech, Bush made an appeal to Democrats — although he acknowledged "they are not going to agree with me on every issue."

For the third consecutive day, Kerry assailed Bush over the disappearance of nearly 400 tons of explosives in Iraq.

"The missing explosives could very likely be in the hands of terrorists and insurgents, who are actually attacking our forces now 80 times a day on average," the Democrat said in Iowa. DAVID ESPO (AP)

Britons Sue Over Alleged Gitmo Abuse

SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO | Four British citizens released from Guantanamo Bay filed a lawsuit Wednesday against the United States seeking $10 million each in damages for abuse they allegedly suffered at the U.S. military outpost in Cuba, attorneys said Wednesday.

The suit on behalf of Shafiq Rasul, 26, Asif Iqbal, 22, Ruhu Ahmed, 22, and Jamal Al-Harith, 37, was filed by the Center for Constitutional Rights and a Washington-based law firm.

Among the abuse allegations, the lawsuit alleges the four were chained to the floor while strobe lights and loud music were played in a room chilled by air conditioning set at maximum levels. The men say they were subjected to the conditions for up to 14 hours at a time.

The Pentagon denied the abuse allegations, saying the men were properly held in Guantanamo after being captured in Afghanistan and having fought for al Qaeda.

The Pew Research Center called back 519 voters who were either undecided in September or said they could still change their minds. That group had tilted toward Bush and is now evenly split on Bush and Kerry. By more than 3-to-1, the swing voters said Kerry did the better job in the debates.

Tired Medical Interns Prone to Errors

Young doctors working long shifts make more mistakes, study finds

From prescribing overdoses to sticking a tube in the wrong vein, doctors-in-training made one-third more serious mistakes during typically long shifts than they did during "short" 16-hour ones, a Harvard study found.

At the same time, those first-year interns were wired up with electrodes to measure how often their sleepy eyes rolled, and they ended up nodding off more than five times a night during long shifts.

Together, the findings suggest that recently imposed limits on how many hours new doctors can work do not go far enough, the researchers said.

Medical interns were hooked up to sleep monitors as part of the Harvard study.

The studies were the first to measure the real-life toll that sleep deprivation takes on interns' medical judgment. The results were reported Thursday in the New England Journal of Medicine.

The two studies involved 20 interns and were conducted in the cardiac and medical intensive care units at Harvard-affiliated Brigham and Women's Hospital.

Each intern spent three weeks in one unit, working at least 24 hours on every other shift, and three weeks in the other unit, with no more than 16 hours per shift.

During the longer shifts, the interns made five times as many diagnostic errors and 36 percent more significant medical errors of all kinds. JANET MCCONNAUGHEY (AP)

Teen Suspended for Civil War Musket

PINE BUSH, N.Y. | A student Civil War re-enactor has been suspended from school for 21 days after a security guard spotted a replica musket in his car.

Joshua Phelps, 17, was arrested Oct. 12 and charged with weapons possession, punishable by up to a year in jail. School officials also found a bayonet, rolled cartridges with black powder and a Union soldier's uniform in his car.

Police have said the replica could have been used to fire a projectile.

School officials did not immediately return calls Wednesday.

Phelps said he joined the re-enactors club in hopes it would look good on his college applications. He said he took part in a re-enactment the weekend before his arrest and forgot the musket was still in his car.

His mother, Valerie Michaels, said she was concerned the suspension would interfere with his plans to take the SAT in November since he is not allowed on school grounds.

A court hearing is set for Monday on the weapons charge. (AP)

Fallujah Showdown Looms

Military maneuvering, stern warnings presage offensive, some say

BAGHDAD | An uptick in airstrikes and other military moves point to an imminent showdown between U.S. forces and Sunni Muslim insurgents west of Baghdad — a decisive battle that could determine whether the campaign to bring democracy and stability to Iraq can succeed.

U.S. officials have not confirmed a major assault is near against the insurgent bastions of Fallujah and neighboring Ramadi. But Iraqi Prime Minister Ayad Allawi has warned Fallujah leaders that force will be used if they do not hand over extremists, including terror mastermind Abu Musab al-Zarqawi.

A similar escalation in U.S. military actions and Iraqi government warnings occurred before a major offensive in Najaf forced militia-men loyal to radical Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr to give up that holy city in late August.

Now U.S. airstrikes on purported

A U.S. soldier injured in a roadside bomb is evacuated by helicopter from a base north of Baghdad on Wednesday.

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

→ Kidnapped British aid worker Margaret Hassan made another plea for her life, urging in a video for Britain to withdraw troops from Iraq and begging for the release of female detainees.

→ Gunmen killed an Iraqi television anchorwoman in Baghdad. Leqaa Abdul Razzaq, who worked for Al-Sharqiyah television, also had worked for the U.S.-funded Iraqiya television until about a month ago.

→ A senior Foreign Ministry official who was once ambassador to the United Arab Emirates was gunned down. The assailants killed Qusai Mahdi Saleh as he was driving to north Baghdad. (AP) al-Zarqawi positions in eastern and northern Fallujah, 40 miles west of Baghdad, have increased. And residents say Marines appear to be reinforcing forward positions near key areas of the city. Other military units are on the move, including 800 British soldiers headed north.

The goal of an attack would be to restore government control in time for national elections by the end of January. However, an all-out assault would carry enormous risk — both political and military — for the Americans and their Iraqi allies. ROBERT H. REID (AP)

Victorious Sharon Dismisses Critics

Internal opposition could sink P.M.'s government

JERUSALEM | Prime Minister Ariel Sharon angrily dismissed a new rebellion in his Likud Party on Wednesday, saying he won't cave in to rivals' threats over his plan to withdraw from the Gaza Strip.

Bolstered by a parliamentary vote Tuesday, Sharon said he would stand firm against the rebels, who include his top rival, Finance Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, and pledged to pull out of Gaza and parts of the West Bank on schedule next summer.

"The disengagement will be carried out," Sharon told the Yediot Ahronot daily.

In Tuesday's historic 67-45 vote, parliament for the first time approved the dismantling of Jewish settlements in lands Israel occupied in the 1967 Mideast war and which are claimed by the Palestinians.

Nearly half the Likud legislators and two religious parties voted against him. The turmoil raised new doubts about his ability to go ahead with the withdrawals. The resignations of senior Likud ministers could cause the government to crumble, forcing Sharon to call new elections, or delay implementation.

Sharon said he would not be swayed. "I will never give in to pressure and threats," he told Yediot.

Mayor Presents Plan to Appease Stadium Foes

WASHINGTON | To gain support for — and mute criticism of — his proposed baseball stadium, Mayor Anthony A. Williams announced plans Wednesday to create a $400 million community investment fund.

Plans are still in the works, but the money could be used for things like schools, libraries, recreation centers or other projects. The mayor would pay for it by creating a Tax Increment Financing district around the Southeast Washington ballpark.

Williams said the idea came to him after talking with hundreds of people in the community about the baseball stadium. He said many people supported it, but then asked about money for schools or other projects.

The mayor promised further details on the 10-year TIF district, before the council marks up the legislation Nov. 3.

The council is scheduled to vote on the $440 million stadium plan Nov. 9.

Before the vote, the 13-member council has what appears to be a marathon public hearing on the baseball legislation scheduled Thursday. Councilman Jack Evans, D-Ward 2, said 180 people are signed up to speak.

Peterson makes jump to Channel 7 after 33 years at Channel 9

WASHINGTON | Veteran TV news anchor Gordon Peterson will move from WUSA Channel 9 to WJLA Channel 7, it was announced Wednesday.

Peterson began anchoring the 6 and 11 p.m. news on Channel 9 in 1971. He was replaced on the late news in August by Tracey Neale, who came from WTTG Channel 5 as WUSA sought to improve sagging ratings.

Peterson said he is leaving Channel 9 on "the best of terms" and will take many fond memories with him.

He will begin anchoring the 6 p.m. news on Dec. 5, teaming with former Channel 9 partner Maureen Bunyan. "Inside Washington," the Sunday morning talk show Peterson has moderated since 1988, will also join WJLA's lineup.

Leon Harris, who recently moved to WJLA from CNN, remains Channel 7's main anchor.

Permanent Fund For Bay Supported

WASHINGTON | A panel appointed by Chesapeake Bay watershed governors is calling on state and federal officials to create a $15 billion bay financing authority — a permanent, revolving fund to pay for restoring the estuary.

The fund would require an investment over the next six years of $12 billion in federal money and a total of $3 billion from Washington D.C., and the watershed states — Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York.

The panel, headed by former Virginia Gov. Gerald Baliles, found after seven months of research that the watershed's escalating population will soon overwhelm current cleanup efforts, and that's why the extra funds are needed. (AP)

Redskins Fans Win the Right of Way

UPPER MARLBORO, MD. | Washington Redskins fans will be able to walk to FedEx Field.

A Prince George's County appeals board voted 2-1 Wednesday night to overturn a pedestrian ban that kept certain roads off-limits on game days.

The walking ban will still be in effect for Sunday's game against the Green Bay Packers because the county does not have time to rework its security plans before then.

Fans can walk to the next home game, Nov. 14 against the Cincinnati Bengals.

Peggy Feltman, the Redskins fan who brought the case, said she was relieved and happy.

"I will be walking down Redskins Road leading the crowd at the first game," Feltman said. (AP)

Independence Hits Rough Air

Low-fare carrier based at Dulles revamps in wake of $83M loss

MCLEAN, VA. | Just four months after its launch, Independence Air is right up there with some of the largest U.S. carriers — in survival mode.

Its planes less than half full despite dirt-cheap fares, Independence Air said Wednesday it will overhaul its ticket distribution system, cut capacity in some markets and negotiate with lenders in order to preserve cash necessary to avoid bankruptcy.

The airline's parent company, FLYi, announced third-quarter losses Wednesday of $83 million, or $1.82 a share. A year ago the carrier, then known as Atlantic Coast Airlines, turned a $23 million third-quarter profit. It operated at the time as a regional carrier for United Airlines and Delta Air Lines.

This summer the company remade itself into a low-fare carrier based at Dulles. It believed that fares as low as $58 would generate enough demand to fill 600 daily departures to 39 East Coast cities.

Company chief executive Kerry Skeen acknowledged on Wednesday, though, that the airline simply hasn't drawn as many travelers as it expected. Skeen said the airline will abandon its plan to sell tickets only through its Web site and its 1-800 number and will make its tickets available through the Galileo system used by travel agents.

Skeen also said the airline was cutting capacity in underperforming markets such as Newark, Boston, New York and Raleigh.

Economy Expands Despite Setbacks

WASHINGTON | The U.S. economy continued to grow in the early fall despite being buffeted by rising energy costs and hurricanes, the Federal Reserve said Wednesday, providing its last snapshot of business conditions before Election Day.

The survey of business activity around the country was compiled from reports submitted by the Fed's 12 regional banks.

The Fed's report will be used by central bank policy-makers when they meet Nov. 10 to decide whether to raise interest rates further. (AP)

D.C. to Get Target, Finally

WASHINGTON | The nation's capital has been hoping to attract a big discount store for years. Mayor Anthony A. Williams announced Wednesday the city finally hit that target with an agreement to bring a Target store to a changing Northwest Washington neighborhood.

The company has signed an agreement to buy land and build a store in the Columbia Heights section, about two miles north of the White House. The deal includes $42 million in public financing, most of which will be used to pay for a parking garage. The store plans to open in late 2007.

Williams said the store will mean 500 construction jobs and

Williams

1,000 permanent jobs, as well as thousands of dollars in taxes.

"It's not like Kmart," he said, referring to an earlier plan to locate a discount store in the District. That plan failed after Kmart declared bankruptcy. "When a company buys the land, they're committed to build the store," Williams said. (AP)

Arrington Doubtful For Sunday

Redskins' kicker Hall will probably miss his second straight game

REDSKINS | Washington Redskins linebacker LaVar Arrington and kicker John Hall were not able to practice Wednesday, and both are listed as doubtful for Sunday's game against the Green Bay Packers.

Arrington has missed four straight games since having knee surgery Sept. 23. Trainer Bubba Tyer said the main issue slowing Arrington's return is the loss of strength in the thigh muscle during rehabilitation.

Hall, recovering from a strained groin, was able to kick about 10 balls a short distance under trainers' supervision. Ola Kimrin, signed as an emergency fill-in for the Chicago game on Oct. 17, is expected kick in his second NFL game Sunday.

There was better news for two other players. Phillip Daniels, who has missed four games with a groin injury, practiced and is listed as questionable. Linebacker Mike Barrow, sidelined since training camp with tendinitis in his knee, had his first practice in pads and is also listed as questionable. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Redskins — a Political Bellwether

Victory at home bodes well for President Bush

REDSKINS | This election season, Washington Redskins corner-back Fred Smoot has a predicament faced by many NFL players: a Democrat's background and a Republican's income.

Smoot, a black man from modest means in Mississippi, has decided to choose his roots over his pocket-book. He is supporting Democratic Sen. John Kerry for president.

That, however, presents Smoot with another dilemma: For Kerry to win, the Redskins have to lose on Sunday — at least according to a bizarre statistical correlation that's been accurate for seven decades.

"We've got to win this game no doubt, but I'm hoping John Kerry can kind of reverse the curse," Smoot said.

Since the Redskins became the Redskins in 1933, the result of the team's final home game before the presidential election has correctly predicted the White House winner. If the Redskins win, the incumbent party wins. If they lose, the incumbent party is ousted.

"It's kind of amazing," said coach Joe Gibbs, who is solidly in the Bush camp.

Bush

Kerry

Democratic vice presidential candidate John Edwards has been quoted as saying he's rooting for the Green Bay Packers, the Redskins' opponent on Sunday. While no doubt thankful for the endorsement, Green Bay coach Mike Sherman is concerned about the health of quarterback Brett Favre.

"It's going to take a lot more than Packers fans to determine the outcome of an election," Sherman said.

The locker room, particularly in Washington, isn't immune to political discussions in this politically charged year. Most players, however, are reluctant to go public with their views.

Quarterback Mark Brunell made his preference for Bush known earlier this week, but he backed off when asked about it again Wednesday.

"I don't know if it was very smart," Brunell said, "so I'm going to keep it quiet right now."

The 1918 Boston Red Sox, seen here, were the last team in the franchise's history to win the World Series. As a result, years of angst developed in Red Sox Nation.

Name Is Coming Soon for D.C. Team

BASEBALL | Washington's baseball team may soon have a name.

Major League Baseball executives plan to meet with Mayor Anthony Williams next week to discuss the name for the former Montreal Expos.

Williams has said he prefers something other than "The Senators." Other names being tossed about include "The Nationals" and "The Grays," a nod to the Negro League team that played in the nation's capital.

Mark Tuohey, who chairs the D.C. Sports and Entertainment Commission, told reporters Wednesday that baseball is interested in having a name as soon as possible for marketing purposes. But he said it could take months to transfer the team to a new owner. (AP)

A Series of Unfortunate Events for the Red Sox

BASEBALL | Harry Frazee was ready for the reaction.

The Boston Red Sox owner had just sold Babe Ruth to the New York Yankees for $125,000 and a $300,000 loan.

"Ruth had simply become impossible and the Boston club could no longer put up with his eccentricities," he said.

And so began what's now known as The Curse of the Bambino, on Jan. 3, 1920, which was in peril heading into Wednesday's Game 4 of the World Series.

The Red Sox had won five of the first 15 World Series before the trade, the last one in 1918.

Ruth, then a pitcher, too, threw a six-hit shutout against the Chicago Cubs in the opener at Comiskey Park, winning 1-0. He then beat the Cubs 3-2 at Fenway in Game 4 on three days' rest.

Boston didn't get back to the World Series until 1946. That's when shortstop Johnny Pesky did or didn't hold the relay as Enos Slaughter scored from first on Harry Walker's eighth-inning double, which provided the go-ahead run in the Cardinals' 4-3 win in Game 7 at Sportsman's Park.

In 1967, the Red Sox and Cardinals went to the seventh game again and started Jim Lonborg, who pitched a one-hit shutout in Game 2 and a three-hitter in Boston's Game 5 win. Pitching on two days' rest, Lonborg lost 7-2 at Fenway to Bob Gibson, who pitched a three-hitter on three days' rest for his third win of the Series.

In 1975, Carlton Fisk hit a 12th-inning homer off the left-field foul pole to win Game 6, jumping and famously waving his arms to will the ball fair. But Boston wasted a 3-0 lead in Game 7, also at Fenway. Joe Morgan blooped a go-ahead ninth-inning single off Jim Burton in Cincinnati's 4-3 win.

Perhaps the worst torture came in 1986 when the Red Sox came within a strike of winning the title in Game 6. But then came Bob Stanley's tying wild pitch and Mookie Wilson's winning grounder through the legs of first baseman Bill Buckner. And the rest is history.

WHO KNEW? University of Oklahoma football coach Bob Stoops issued a statement on Wednesday saying he has no interest in the opening at the University of Florida, created by this week's firing of head coach Ron Zook. Much of the speculation surrounding the job has centered on former Florida coach Steve Spurrier, who coached the Redskins for two years. (EXPRESS)

At Halloween, this town gets even scarier

OUT & ABOUT | Ghouls on the go, the dead sexy and their closest fiends can all find places to party, dance, learn, watch, listen and, of course, haunt foolish mortals this Halloween weekend. So whether you've got kids in tow or the perfect costume concept, don't expect the horror and fright to come to you — go out and seize it!

Dead Heads:

The Mexican holiday Day of the Dead migrates north to the Mall, where kids and revelers can learn about Dia de los Muertos through music, storytelling, displays and activities. National Museum of American History, 14th Street and Constitution Avenue NW; Sat., Oct. 30, noon-4 p.m., free; 202-633-1000. (Smithsonian)

Hey, Boo:

At Historic Alexandria Hauntings, trick-or-treaters of all ages can hear haunted tales and rot their teeth at Market Square, Carlyle House and Gadsby's Tavern. Don a costume and bring the kids. Gadsby's Tavern Museum, 134 N. Royal St., Alexandria; Sat., Oct. 30, 7-10 p.m.; $10, $5 ages 12 and under; 703-838-4242. (King Street)

Sheer Poe-try:

Before there was Stephen King, there was Edgar Allan Poe. Actor David Keltz returns to the Lyceum for "Poe in Alexandria," where he will re-create Poe's 1849 visit to Virginia and recite from various Poe-ems and stories. The Lyceum, 201 S. Washington St., Alexandria; Sat.-Sun., Oct. 30-31, 8 p.m.; $12; 703-838-4994. (King Street)

Monster Bash:

Really, what's scarier than watching someone dressed up as George W. Bush doing karaoke? The D.C. Society of Young Professionals is holding its annual "Graveyard Jam," which features dancing, karaoke, caricatures, games and costume contests. Hard Rock Cafe, 999 E St. NW; Sat., Oct. 30, 8 p.m.-3 a.m.; $10 in advance; 202-686-6085; www.dcyoungpro.com. (Metro Center)

Air and Scare Night:

There'll be a talk about the disappearance of the B-24 bomber Lady Be Good and a screening of cult film "Sole Survivor." National Air and Space Museum, 6th Street and Independence Avenue SW; Thu., Oct. 28, 7 p.m., free with reservations; 202-633-2398 or lectures@nasm.si.edu. (Smithsonian)

Glamour Ghouls:

Dress to impress the undead at MOCA's "Artists and Models Halloween Bash," with door prizes and all-night modeling. MOCA DC, 1054 31st St. NW; Fri., Oct. 29, 6 p.m., free, donation suggested; 202-966-0366.

An Eerie 'Toon:

JUANA ARIAS/TWP

DAWN OF THE

DAY OF THE DEAD: A couple of Dia de los Muertos skeleton figurines, called Katrinas, celebrate their lasting — and lasting — marital union.

Street Cinema, 555 11th St. NW; Fri.-Sat., Oct. 29-30, midnight; 202-452-7672. (Metro Center)

Tours of Boo-ty:

Stories of murder, haunting and lost love abound on the Montgomery County Historical Society's torch-lit tours through two historic areas in the county. "In Search of Ghosts" tours begin every 15 minutes and last one hour. Old Baptist Cemetery, West Montgomery Avenue and West Jefferson Street, Rockville; Fri., Oct. 29, 7-8 p.m. Waters House, 12535 Milestone Manor Lane, Germantown; Sat., Oct. 30, 7-8 p.m.; $12 for each (reservations required); 301-340-2825.

Tell Me Another:

Washington Storytellers' Theatre had a contest and hand-picked the five scariest stories. Grab a blanket and a flashlight and "Enter the Darkness" at the WST's "Night of Really Scary Stories." DCAC, 2438 18th St. NW; Sat., Oct. 30, 10 p.m., $10, $8 with costume; 301-891-1129.

Lady and the Vamp:

Come in costume and join musicians of the Arlington Symphony, fortune tellers and roaming vampires at a screening of the 1922 horror classic "Nosferatu" with live musical accompaniment. Schlesinger Concert Hall & Arts Center, 3001 N. Beauregard St. Alexandria; Fri., Oct. 29, 7:30 p.m., Sun., Oct. 31, 3 p.m., $20; 703-528-1817. ERIN O'CONNOR

Raise Awareness, Beer Cans: Bosom Ball Bash

If you've been, like, under a table for the last few months, you might not have heard that everyone from Target to Z104 is doing their darnedest to make you and you and you aware of breast cancer. The local radio station's Halloween Night Bosom Ball features performances from the Pat McGee Band, Howie Day and Bowling for Soup, and benefits George Washington University's Mammovan, so the music is as good as the cause. Or you can go to Target and buy the pink shirt; it's pretty cute.

9:30 Club, 815 V St. NW; Sun., Oct. 31, 8 p.m., $40; 703-218-6500. (U St.-Cardozo)

Green Day wins every stare contest.

Blue Skies: Green Day

Crafters of meticulously catchy and impeccable pop driven with a fiercely propulsive engine, No Cal college faves Green Day pretty much made punk rock safe for mainstream radio. Come to think of it, they may also be responsible for Avril Lavigne. Thanks a lot, guys.

Berber nomads went through war and came out with a band

MUSIC | Wanna hear about the real rebel life? Before Keddou Ag Ossad gave up his Kalashnikov rifle in favor of a guitar, he took 17 bullets.

Ossad and his 10 bandmates met as armed insurgents in Africa during the 40-year Malian civil war. They were trained by Libyan strongman Moammar Gadhafi. They were born into the nomadic Touareg tribe, which had been displaced, disenfranchised and violently oppressed since the 1960s.

And then they heard Bob Marley, Bob Dylan, John Lennon and Nass el Ghiwane, the Rolling Stones of Africa. The soldiers took up guitars as their new instruments against oppression. Their rebel songs spread across the African continent.

NOMADS FIND THEIR PLACE: Tinariwen make music — and bring a message of Touareg self-determination — even if it means powering a studio with sunlight.

Now the 10-piece band Tinariwen visits Washington to spread its fusion of electric guitars with traditional rhythms. Tinariwen's desert blues was first presented to the Western world by British guitarist Justin Adams, a collaborator with Robert Plant, Sinead O'Connor and Brian Eno.

The group's latest album, "Amassakoul," recorded in Mali with solar-powered gear, is a mix of hope and lament for the lost golden age of the Saharan tribes.

In 1996, the rebels burned 3,000 rifles and handguns in a symbolic "flame of peace" in Timbuktu. It was a bittersweet gesture by the Touareg people, who had ruled the southern Sahara for thousands of years. And now they mean to conquer the world with nothing but guitars. BOB MASSEY

"be RIGHT and write in RITTENHOUSE"

Presidential Candidate Stan Rittenhouse recognizes that Communist China is America's enemy!! These Communists control both ends of the Panama Canal, allowing them to disrupt international trade and the American economy!! Not only that, but the Communists have positioned themselves to be able to lob missiles directly into the United States from Panama.

This is a critical situation, yet tweedle dee (Bush) and tweedle dum (Kerry) have never once mentioned the word "Panama" and this threat to our security in the many weeks of campaigning.

Vote for Stan Rittenhouse, who has the courage to recognize who America's enemies are!!

Kerry has revealed in his voting record and speeches his propensity to yield to any threat from another country. The Commies have always loved that kind of "courage."

Presidential Candidate Kerry may have demonstrated courage on the military battlefield, but there is clear evidence he doesn't have it on the political battlefield!!!

ASPIRATIONS: In this odd election year, voters may well ask, "Why not El Vez?"

Return of The King

The 'Mexican Elvis' wants the entire U.S. to hear his message

OUT & ABOUT | It's special enough when El Vez comes to town. After all, he's the Mexican Elvis with the swinging hips, swinging hits and the El Vettes, the loveliest backup singers on either side of the border.

This year El Vez has more at stake than a fistful of cross-cultural camp. He's running for president. And he's campaigning Saturday night at the Black Cat.

President of what, no one's sure. But be sure that Los Angeles-based performance artist and gallery owner Robert Lopez always brings the politics in his glitzy, news-conscious activist act, whether it's border policy, U.S. barrio life or the idea of one Elvis Presley at play in both cultures.

Lopez grew up assuming vaguely that Elvis himself was Mexican — the King's black-velvet image was unavoidable in Latino culture of the 1960s, and films like "Fun in Acapulco" didn't argue otherwise. So when El Vez first burst onto the stage in a white jumpsuit with the Virgin of Guadalupe emblazoned on the back, the connection between the original and the admiring imitator was a close one.

With songs like "You Ain't Nothin' but a Chihuahua" giving way to witty polemics like "Chicanisma" ("Little Sister" with less sibling sexual rivalry and more Latina empowerment), El Vez had found his metier — not just entertaining SoCal hipsters already attuned to Latino culture, but bringing a message of minority pride and inclusion to audiences all over the country.

El Vez figures that the American Dream promises anyone can grow up to be president, God help us. He's already conquered a harder task — he's become the King. (EXPRESS)

VIDEO MADE THE RADIO STAR: Del drops smart, funky rhymes and spins complicated grooves for audiophiles, dance enthusiasts and lately, video gamers.

Get Down, Get Funkee

It's game on for the video-star DJs of ESPN's Cali Comm

MUSIC | Students of hip-hop — and a whole bunch of video-game-playin', hemped-out college students — love and respect MC-turned-cartoon character Del tha Funkee Homosapien.

Del's again headlining the annual Cali Comm tour; expect his signature "alternative rap" costume and tracks from his entire catalogue at the 9:30 Club Friday night.

Never quite a mainstream star, but always critically lauded, Del's been selling hundreds of thousands of discs since the early '90s, when he was still a teenager.

His post-millennium career includes the classic Deltron 3030 concept album and his hit Gorillaz record — both collaborations with Damon Albarn of Blur, dream producer Dan Nakamura and sundry others.

Del's dropped smart, funny rhymes on more subjects — and with more co-conspirators — than one can easily count. Sometimes he's "socially conscious"; sometimes he raps about video games.

These days he raps in video games: ESPN's new NBA 2K5 features Del as both character and soundtrack staple. The folks at ESPN were even kind enough to sponsor his current tour.

His tourmates — Aceyalone, Abstract Rude, Haiku d'état, Zion I and Bukue One — will work the crowd with an abandon befitting those less sure of their places in the encyclopedia of hip-hop.

Whether you like your MCs to rock knowledge or prefer your reality blunted, this show's a safe bet. TIM FOLLOS

Visions of Horror

A film historian projects our worst fears onto the screen

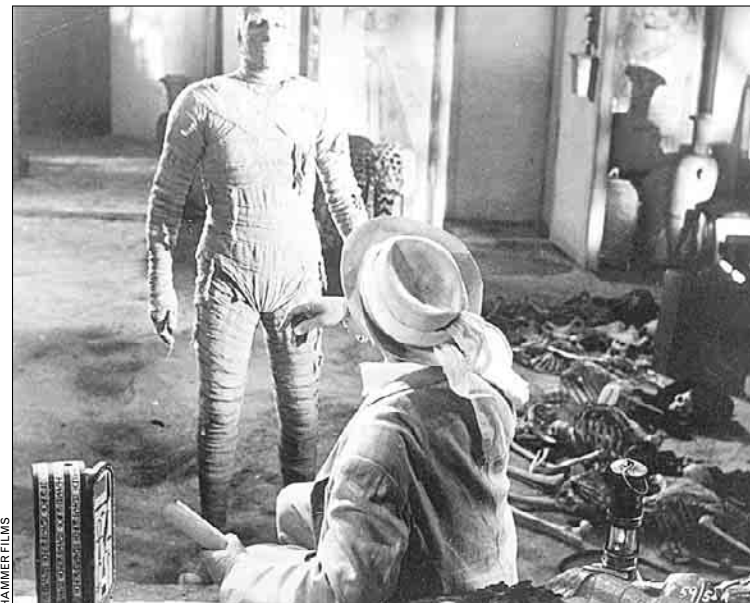

THE UNSPEAKABLE | Psychologists say there are only three things we're naturally afraid of: heights, loud noises and cats that jump out of the closet when we're looking for monsters.

And then there are all the things that unnaturally set us off: the snacking binges of the undead, hockey masks worn out of season, plants that attack.

When film historian and lecturer Max Alvarez presents "Scream and Scream Again: The Terrifying World of Horror Films" Thursday at the S. Dillon Ripley Center, he'll examine both the fear we're born with and that special dread we've learned at the movies.

Of course, nothing arouses the latter like overblown Tinseltown retreads of horror classics. Who doesn't recoil at the thought of some youngster sticking the new "Dawn of the Dead" in her Netflix queue, oblivious to the very existence of the 1978 original?

Alvarez will address this most ungodly of terrors after the intermission. First he'll offer an international survey of folks who had the fright stuff, from German auteur F.W. Murnau, who got the vampire ball rolling in the early '20s, to cinematographer-turned-director Mario Bava, whose blood-and-lace cheapies set the tone for Italian shockers in the '60s.

And of course the lecture will give a nod to Hammer horror hero Christopher Lee, who always gave the perfectly British impression of being able to jab both your eyes out without spilling the peas balanced on the back of the fork.

Perhaps Alvarez will also solve this mystery: Why is every American sicko a sucker for the overhand stab? No respectable maniac wants to be mistaken for some greaser in a rumble, but if you're going to slash, slash properly. GLENN DIXON

Buddhist thinker
Robert Thurman
on the sin of angerLECTURE | There are seven deadly sins: envy, pride, avarice, lust, anger, gluttony and the ever-popular sloth.
Although this framework has been a great boon to mystery writers looking to establish a franchise, it was actually thought up by the Catholic Church. (Note that simony fails to make the list.)So you'd think that Oxford University Press would turn to a Jesuit or at least a Dominican for the fifth in their series of books devoted to the magnificent seven.
But "Anger" is the work of Robert
A.F. Thurman, the Jey Tsong Khapa
Chair in Indo-Tibetan Buddhist
Studies at Columbia University.Friday at Olsson's Penn Quarter location, Thurman will discuss his

Tibetan Buddhists are absolutegeniuses at not being angry. China they do is make friends with the

SPARKLE PLENTY: Super Diamond is husky-voiced, balding showbiz personified.

All We Have Is Us

Super Diamond brings out the Neil fan inside everyone

MUSIC | Go to a bar on a Saturday night and watch any given acoustic singer play "Sweet Caroline." Dozens of patrons will wail along. Yeah, it's safe to say there are some closet Neil Diamond fans out there.

Super Diamond and its founder, Randy Cordero — aka "Surreal Neil" — capitalize on this fact in a huge way. The tribute band has been treating audiences around the country to spectacular alternative covers of Neil Diamond's greatest tunes since the early 1990s. And they'll be at the 9:30 Club on Saturday.

The band has made believers out of Diamond fans young and old, and even those who normally loathe Diamond's music. But Super Diamond's most prominent fan remains The Man himself, who has even performed with the band a few times.

Where did it begin? Cordero discovered his voice resembled Diamond's husky tones. He played around with singing some of the artist's songs in clubs, found surprisingly receptive audiences, based himself in the San Francisco area and formed a band.

Fifteen years and hundreds of shows later, with sparkly costumes, platform shoes and passionate performances, Super Diamond's got the way to move us. ERIN O'CONNOR

NEW 'BLOOD: Combining influences that range from Jimi Hendrix and Charley Patton to Thin Lizzy and ska, Hart infuses the blues with rock 'n' roll power.

PIEDMONT TALENT

Traveling Every Music's Highway

Multigenre master Alvin Youngblood Hart's red-hot blues

MUSIC: The Year of the Blues officially ended at the beginning of February. Which means that those of you who liked the music anyway should be getting back to enjoying it without shame or PBS. For a while there, Marty Scorsese and his pals were making that nigh on impossible during their seven-part series "The Blues," which aired on public television.

And those of you who still haven't forgiven Wim Wenders — his was the episode with the cheesy space-probe interludes — for cutting short Alvin Youngblood Hart's pulse-pounding rendition of Skip James' "Illinois Blues" should be getting to Jammin' Java Thursday night.

Although Hart emerged in the mid-'90s as one of the most talented acoustic blues pickers to come along in years, he was raised not just on Charley Patton and Bukka White but also on Jimi Hendrix and the Rolling Stones.

On this tour, the act is billed as Alvin Youngblood Hart's Muscle Theory, a power trio that includes bassist Gary Rasmussen (formerly with Iggy Pop and Patti Smith) and drummer Ed Michaels (once one of Commander Cody's Lost Planet Airmen).

This may sound like a serious departure, but Hart has fashioned a career out of them. His 1996 debut, "Big Mama's Door," included duets with acoustic-blues vet Taj Mahal. On the 1998 follow-up, "Territory," Hart claimed the turf of ska and Western swing as his own.

Two years later, he was tipping his hat to the Sonics and Thin Lizzy. And two years after that, he was picking the blues on banjo and mandolin.

By this point, Hart's fans know to follow wherever he leads.

The Great Uiter: John Scofield's Jazz

Jazz has always been the center of a tug-of-war between definitions — primitive and sensual vs. egghead and elitist. No one reconciles the twin souls of jazz better than guitarist John Scofield, who, with his trio, plays red-blooded intellectual jazz that swings like Tarzan.

WHO WHAT WHERE WHEN WHY

“ ... What's the difference between this show and the 24-hour flu? Twenty-three hours ...
... Where oh where is a cable outage when you really need one ...
... No, it doesn't make much sense, but maybe I wasn't paying close enough attention.
Maybe I was distracted by a piece of pocket lint ... ”

Staying In | Pumpkin Drinks

It's that time of year when pumpkin is crammed into every imaginable food and beverage, and alcohol is no different. Pumpkin-flavored beers and ciders offer only the mildest of hints, however. If you want a prominent, substantive, now-THAT'S-pumpkin taste, you've got to pop the top off the holiday squash or crack open a can of Libby's.

Those looking to put a little class in their orange goop will find just that in a pumpkin martini, the key ingredient of which is pumpkin vodka.

Unless you've got a still in the basement, the simplest method is to mix vodka with pumpkin puree or pie filling — about half a can per bottle of vodka — and strain the mixture through cheesecloth, said Michael Waterhouse, cocktail enthusiast and owner of Drink Tank, a New York-based restaurant company.

Getting a good balance of tastes may take practice. "Pumpkin is a funny thing," he said. "It's got a very vegetable flavor, and it's easy to have too much of it." The vodka can be served straight with a touch of sugar syrup or sub for plain vodka in any martini. Or add a splash of amaretto and garnish with toasted pumpkin seeds. But don't go overboard on the sweet stuff, Waterhouse advised. "It should be clean. It's a real drink, not like candy."

Not all pumpkin drinks require vodka: Maggiano's in Washington and McLean mixes pumpkin spice syrup

with rum and half and half. The pumpkin cheesecake martini, below, a best-seller at Waterhouse's Dylan Prime restaurant in New York, uses puree alone. CHRIS MINCHER (EXPRESS)

Poke it with a sharp stick and eat it: Food critic Tom Sietsema reviews Kebob Palace Family Restaurant in Arlington. In Sunday's Washington Post magazine.

It's the Great Pumpkin Mixer, Charlie Brown

Expecting a crowd? Pumpkin punch encourages socializing and, if you embrace overkill, can be served in a hollowed-out pumpkin and/or imbibed straight from mini-pumpkin shells. Or whip up a creamy pumpkin cheesecake martini.

BASIC PUMPKIN PUNCH

1. Blend a cup and a half of spiced rum and one 15-ounce can pumpkin puree or pie filling.
2. Add a 12-ounce bottle of carbonated cider — alcoholic, if you want to give it some kick — and two 12-ounce cans of ginger ale, to take the edge off.
3. Pour the mixture into the hollowed pumpkin or punch bowl.
4. Drop in a few handfuls of pumpkin chunks, because at this point you've already exceeded your pumpkin threshold so a little more won't kill you.

Change the amounts of rum, cider and ginger ale to adjust the potency. For the strongest pumpkin taste, make the punch in the pumpkin the night before and leave it in the fridge overnight to soak up the flavor, Waterhouse advised.

PUMPKIN CHEESECAKE MARTINI

Into a dry shaker:

- 1 large tablespoon whipped cream cheese
- 1 large tablespoon canned pumpkin puree
- 1½ oz vanilla rum
- ¾ oz cinnamon schnapps
- ¾ oz sugar syrup

Add ice, shake vigorously and strain into a martini glass; sprinkle lightly with nutmeg.

"...with a dry sake — shrimp... scallop sushi... yellow tail... tuna — these fingers of raw fish made for a fine little repast."

WONDERBRA, 1947: It originated long before Victoria got secretive.

RETROSEXUAL? Not yet in the dictionary; it suits scruffy Ben to a tee.

MOBILE PHONE, 1945: The term got early mileage after World War II.

Hip book separates the prawn-sandwich men from the chavs

In 1904 it was "hip." In 2004 it's "chav." In between, there was "racism," "cyborg," "punk" and "9/11."

They are all words chosen by a book that charts the creation of new words over the past 100 years.

Author and word lover Susie Dent has delved into the social and political concerns of society from 1904 to 2004, choosing a word for each year to provide a snapshot of it.

Each word in "Larpers and Shroomers: The Language Report" made its first appearance in the Oxford English Dictionary in its year of nomination.

Some words distill the social or political scene in the given year — "U-boat" in 1916, "demob" in 1920, "Blitzkrieg" in 1939, "peacenik" in 1963, "Watergate" in 1972, "punk" in 1974, "dot-commer" in 1997 and

Slanguage Lessons

"9/11" in 2001.

Others are surprising for how early they appear — "spliff" in 1962, "mobile phone" in 1945, "wonderbra" in 1947, "generation X" in 1952 and "cyborg" in 1960.

"Mobile phone was almost certainly military technology post-war. It disappeared for a while," Dent said.

Oxford University Press, publisher of Dent's book, said English is the fastest-moving language in the world, as well as the largest.

"A lot of European countries have language academies that preserve the nature of their languages, but we've never had an academy in English," Dent said. "There's no single authority saying what you can have and what you can't."

Some words in the list have not stood the test of time — "tiddy-om-pom-pom" in 1909 and "lumpenproletariat" in 1924.

Many others have, often popping up with renewed meaning decades later — "racism" in 1935, "fast food" in 1951, "awesome" in 1961.

CHAV, 2004: Ali G. has the tracksuit and gold of a chav.

As for the latest addition, "chav" is a slightly derogatory term for young men who wear cheap gold jewelry, tracksuits and baseball caps.

Dent also considers words or terms of the moment that haven't yet made it to the dictionary.

The scruffy "retrosexual" is a man who spends as little time and money as possible on his appearance.

Other words included "freeganism," a philosophy that promotes getting as much of one's food as possible from free sources and "movieoke," a film variation of karaoke.

Colorful business talk is also chronicled in the book. A "prawn-sandwich man" is a corporate freeloader.

And for those still struggling to work out the title: Larper refers to a Live Action Role Player, or someone who loves acting out fantasy adventures.

Dr. Seuss

RON LAMOTHE, was online Wednesday to discuss "The Political Dr. Seuss," his PBS documentary about author Theodor Geisel | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Wasn't Dr. Seuss in the Army at some point? I seem to recall that he drew political cartoons for the Army Times.

He was in the U.S. Army Signal Corps during WWII, stationed out in Hollywood at "Fort Fox," as it was called. That's where he worked with Frank Capra and many others to produce educational and propaganda films for American soldiers. As for the editorial cartoons, most of these were drawn for PM, a left-wing New York newspaper.

I knew that Dr. Seuss was vaguely revolutionary when I was reading him growing up. Have you seen the exhibit of his original drawings and drafts at the Children's Museum of Manhattan? I was entranced.

Although I have not seen those exhibits, I've seen many of his original drawings and drafts over the past several years working on this film. One thing I was hoping to demonstrate in the film — that these certainly show — was his creative process, particularly the fact that these were not frivolous creations knocked off on a Sunday afternoon. "The Cat in the Hat," for example, took him a year and a half to write!

How would Dr. Seuss deal with the present day, in your opinion?

I've often felt in the past year or so that, if Dr. Seuss were alive and well, he would — as he did during WWII and again during the 1980s — feel compelled to address our current situation in America and the world. He always had a keen eye for demagogues and bullies, and although an idealist at heart, it never prevented him from using his sharp and satiric wit to attack that demagoguery and, as he put it so wonderfully, "the dissemination of stupidity."

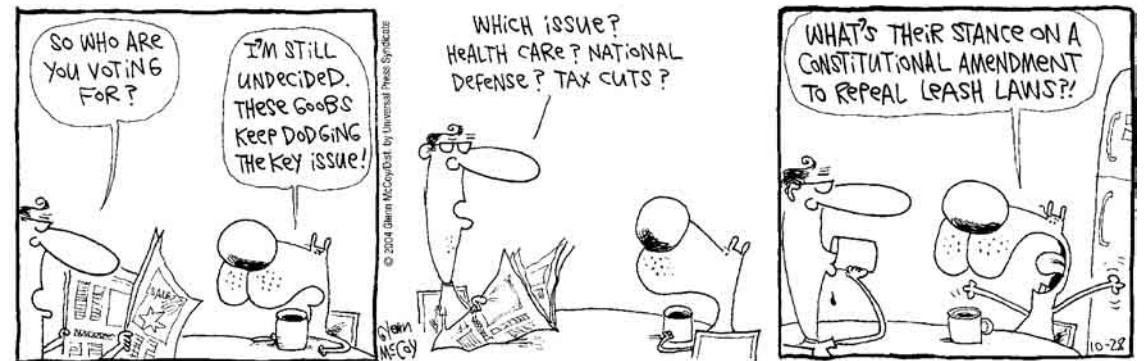

In his opinion, and mine, it is not being "pessimistic" to criticize one's government or society; it's the most patriotic and democratic thing one can do.

Disturbing Molestation Talk

I AM INCREASINGLY disturbed by our society's acceptance of pedophilic tendencies. Mary K. Letourneau molests a young boy and gets a spot on Larry King, and now Nicole Kidman, as reported in Wednesday's Express, is defending her new movie, in which she gets into a bathtub with a 10-year-old boy, as "a beautiful film about love." Child molestation is depraved, manipulative, controlling and abusive. It certainly isn't "love."

Don't Bust on Usher

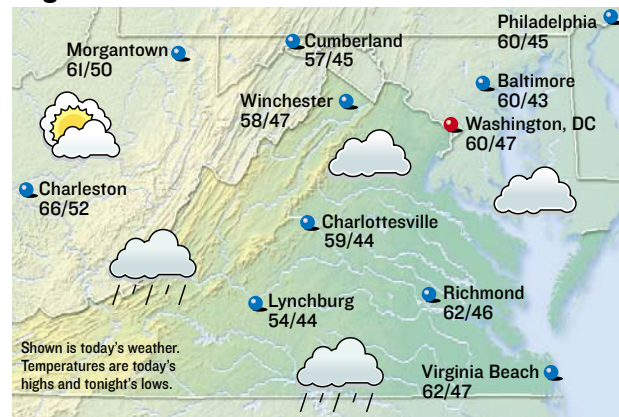

THE ARTICLE ON Usher in Tuesday's Express had a caption that read: "Usher may not know where Norway is but he's glad they like his album there." This comment is inappropriate and demeaning. Please be more tasteful in your future captions.

Angry Stern Calls FCC Chief

Shock jock HOWARD STERN made a surprise call to a radio station during an interview of the Federal Communications Commission chief Michael Powell, claiming the chairman only got his job because his father is Secretary of State Colin Powell. "It is apparent to most of us in broadcasting that your father got you your job," Stern said. Powell, a Republican, was appointed to the commission by President Clinton in 1997 and became chairman when President Bush took office in 2001. Powell denied Stern's charge, and his father told CNBC on Wednesday the allegation was "nonsense." (AP)

Doctors say Roberts' condition isn't serious and advised bed rest. She is due in January.

HEALTH

Pregnant Julia Roberts Hospitalized for Contractions

A pregnant JULIA ROBERTS was hospitalized over the weekend after experiencing a series of early contractions, People magazine reported. The actress was accompanied by her husband, Danny Moder, when she was admitted to an undisclosed hospital Saturday night. The contractions eventually stopped, but she remained under observation, People reported Tuesday, citing unnamed sources. The 36-year-old movie star is expecting twins — a boy and a girl — in early January. The magazine said Roberts' condition wasn't serious, but that her doctors had advised bed rest until her due date. (AP)

Now the only tired thing on the set of "Herbie" will be the movie's premise.

Lohan Beats Flu, Resumes Rigorous Starlet Schedule

Actress LINDSAY LOHAN was released from a Los Angeles hospital on Tuesday where she was treated for an undisclosed ailment, her publicist told USA Today on Wednesday. Lohan, 18, has been in Los Angeles filming the upcoming Disney flick "Herbie: Fully Loaded," featuring the lovable Volkswagen. She was hospitalized Thursday suffering from exhaustion and a 103-degree fever. (EXPRESS)

DISCOVERIES

Leave It to Ed Wood to Make Unwatchable Porn

It's a triumph for researchers, but maybe not for society: unearthing the final film of legendary B-movie director ED WOOD. Titled "Necromania," the 1978 movie gives an explicit look at a young couple's search for sexual guidance from a coven of witches. But Fredrik Carlstrom, producer of the upcoming "Necromania" DVD, said it's more than just porn. "It has a story, it has ambition," he told Reuters. Of the cast, he warned, "It's in the '70s, they're hairy. They don't look the way we are used to now." You've been warned. (EXPRESS)

MISSIONS

Jolie Visits Sudan

ANGELINA JOLIE, visiting Sudan in her role as U.N. goodwill ambassador, said Wednesday that it is too soon for refugees from western Darfur to return to their homes, as the government is urging. After a three-day visit to the region, the actress told of new attacks on African farmers. Jolie said she had visited about 20 countries across the world as U.N. goodwill ambassador, and "this is the worst situation I have seen." (AP)

'Retired' Jay-Z May Trade Shuffleboard for Label Gig

JAY-Z is in final negotiations to become president of Universal Music Group's Island Def Jam label, a source familiar with the negotiations said Tuesday. Discussions with the superstar rapper, whose real name is Shawn Carter, have been going on for weeks. Barring any last-minute snags, a deal should be finalized within seven to 10 days, according to the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity. After cranking out an album every year since 1996, Jay-Z released The Black Album in 2003 and declared he was retiring from recording. He still remains a major concert draw and is currently touring with R&B superstar R. Kelly. (AP)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Your casual approach is just what the doctor ordered. Others will benefit from almost everything you do today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) A more robust, active partner is one who can enable you to reach your goals in less time. Seek him or her out—and start winning now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Concentrate on the most minute details and you'll discover that everything falls into place from there. Don't be vague.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Follow the rules, but don't make the mistake of keeping still or silent when you come across something that offends your sense of propriety.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Someone you have to deal with directly at the workplace isn't likely to take no for an answer. Be tactful, subtle and discreet.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There are some things that are best left to the experts, but you may be tempted to dabble in things that are just too fascinating to ignore.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may find yourself in a tight spot before the day is out, and it will be up to you to get yourself out of trouble entirely on your own.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may have to go back to square one before you start getting the results you anticipated. The fact is, you may have missed something.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Keep your extravagance under wraps as best you can. Concentrate on those things that keep your feet planted firmly on the ground.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Quality time is what you want—and you're not likely to accept anything less. It's not enough just to engage in small-talk and the like.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone will come to you with a request you cannot grant outright. You will want to talk things over carefully, taking details into account.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You can discover a great deal of value about yourself simply by reflecting on the most routine of events. Don't get cocky, however.
